

ADB looking for researchers on Pacific economic linkages

By Ashlee Betteridge
26 March 2014

The Asian Development Bank's Pacific Department is searching for researchers to undertake six studies to improve understanding on the evolving linkages between Pacific economies.

The ADB is looking for international economists with at least three years of experience in a relevant field to conduct research on imports, exports, ODA, investment and finance, labour and remittances and tourism in the region.

The positions and full terms of reference for each of the six positions are available on the ADB's consultant recruitment platform (enter the search filters as follows: Regional, Multisector, International, 3 months to 1 year, less than $100,000). Applications close April 7. For any further details, contact Joel Hernandez (jhernandez.consultant@adb.org).

About the author/s

Ashlee Betteridge

Ashlee Betteridge was the Manager of the Development Policy Centre until April 2021. She was previously a Research Officer at the centre from 2013-2017. A former journalist, she holds a Master of Public Policy (Development Policy) from ANU and has development experience in Indonesia and Timor-Leste. She now has her own consultancy, Better Things Consulting, and works across several large projects with managing contractors.

Link: <https://devpolicy.org/adb-looking-for-researchers-on-pacific-economic-linkages-20140326/>

Date downloaded: 25 April 2024

Australian
National University

The Devpolicy Blog is based at the Development Policy Centre, Crawford School of Public Policy, College of Asia and the Pacific, Australian National University.