

Aid cuts get the comedy treatment

By Ashlee Betteridge

7 May 2015

While the aid cuts announced in December and to be detailed in next week's budget may be hard for many to laugh about, Charlie Pickering took a savvy look at them on his news comedy show 'The Weekly' on ABC this week. Australians' lack of knowledge on the size of our aid budget, voter support for cuts, the repeated cuts under the Coalition and the asylum seeker diversions under Labor were all skewered. The overall message was that aid is Australia's interests, we give very little, and that Australians should say no to further cuts.

You can watch the video of the segment below.

About the author/s

Ashlee Betteridge

Ashlee Betteridge was the Manager of the Development Policy Centre until April 2021. She was previously a Research Officer at the centre from 2013-2017. A former journalist, she holds a Master of Public Policy (Development Policy) from ANU and has development experience in Indonesia and Timor-Leste. She now has her own consultancy, Better Things Consulting, and works across several large projects with managing contractors.

Link: <https://devpolicy.org/aid-cuts-get-the-comedy-treatment-20150507-2/>

Date downloaded: 25 April 2024

Australian
National University

The Devpolicy Blog is based at the Development Policy Centre, Crawford School of Public Policy, College of Asia and the Pacific, Australian National University.