Aid Profiles

The Development Policy Centre's Aid Profiles series showcases international development contributions with an Australian flavour. Here, we share stories that deserve to be better known.

Aid Profiles are written on those who have made a contribution to the cause of international development which inspires others, which is of lasting and significant value, which has a link to Australia, and which has not yet been adequately recognised.

The Aid Profiles are supported by a grant from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation.

Nominations for the Aid Profiles series are invited. Contact devpolicy@anu.edu.au.

The Aid Profiles also serve as a shortlist for the Mitchell Humanitarian Award.

The Mitchell Humanitarian Award

The Mitchell Humanitarian Award recognised Australians and others supported by Australian aid who have made an outstanding contribution to the cause of international development.

The Mitchell Humanitarian Award was awarded annually from 2017 to 2020. The first was awarded to Robyn Alders. Award winners were selected from the Aid Profiles written in the year preceding the Award, using the same selection criteria each year.

The distinguished selection panel for the Award was chaired by Stephanie Copus-Campbell, experienced development practitioner and founding director with the Harold Mitchell Foundation. The other two panel members were Bob McMullan, former Parliamentary Secretary for International Development Assistance, and Jo Chandler, award-winning journalist, author and editor. The Award included a $10,000 donation to the charity of the awardee's choice.

The Award was named in honour of leading businessman and philanthropist Harold Mitchell AC, to mark his long-term commitment to international development and promoting Australia's role in its region. As former Chair of CARE Australia, long-term supporter of Timor-Leste, Chair of the Australia-Indonesia Centre, and the founding funder of the ANU Development Policy Centre, Mr Mitchell has led the way in terms of business support for international development and regional engagement in Australia.

About the Development Policy Centre

The Development Policy Centre (Devpolicy) is a think tank for aid and development serving Australia, the region, and the global development community. We undertake independent research and promote practical initiatives to improve the effectiveness of Australian aid, to support the development of Papua New Guinea and the Pacific island region, and to contribute to better global development policy. We are based at Crawford School of Public Policy in the College of Asia and the Pacific at The Australian National University. We run the Devpolicy Blog, a platform for analysis and discussion on topics related to our key areas of work. We also run the Australian Aid Tracker website, and host the annual Australasian Aid Conference.
