

Not the Millennium Villages: Colin and Ria in Eastern Indonesia

by Ashlee Betteridge
17 November 2016

When Colin Barlow and Ria Gondowarsito worked together on a report on poverty in Eastern Indonesia in the late 1980s, they didn't know that it would become their life's work. Over the subsequent thirty years, the Nusatenggara Association (commonly known as NTA East Indonesia Aid), which they established, has made a real difference to some of Indonesia's poorest and most drought-prone communities. Colin and Ria's story, told by Stephen Howes in our latest Aid Profile, is both inspirational and educational, with lessons for development practitioners and policy-makers alike.

Read the profile here.

Author/s:

Ashlee Betteridge

Ashlee Betteridge was the Manager of the Development Policy Centre until April 2021. She was previously a Research Officer at the centre from 2013-2017. A former journalist, she holds a Master of Public Policy (Development Policy) from ANU and has development experience in Indonesia and Timor-Leste. She now has her own consultancy, Better Things Consulting, and works across several large projects with managing contractors.

Link: <https://devpolicy.org/not-millennium-villages-colin-ria-eastern-indonesia-20161117/>