

ANU-UPNG jobs in economics and public policy  updated **

Author : Stephen Howes

Date : September 25, 2015

As part of the growing partnership between ANU Crawford School of Public Policy (where Devpolicy sits) and the University of Papua New Guinea School of Business and Public Policy (UPNG SBPP), and with funding from the Australian aid program, we are now advertising four academic positions in economics and public policy (junior and senior).

The successful candidates will be ANU faculty but based in Port Moresby as Visiting Fellows at UPNG SBPP, where they will teach, research, and engage in outreach and service activities alongside their UPNG colleagues.

This is an opportunity to have an impact and make a difference. Check out the job ads here. The closing date is 22 October 2015. More positions will be advertised in the coming days: we'll add the links to this post as they become live.

Update (30 September)

Postdoc/research fellow, Exchange Manager and Research Officer -- all Canberra positions -- and Partnership Officer -- Moresby position -- now open. Same closing date
